

Annotation:

The work entitled Problems of intercultural communication based on differences in vocabulary Czech and German deals with the causes of differences in the two languages. It focuses primarily on the relationship of language and culture, from which the language originated. Specifies the individual links, or areas in the language, which the culture is reflected in action in. The work analyzes the relationships within the language.